The Story

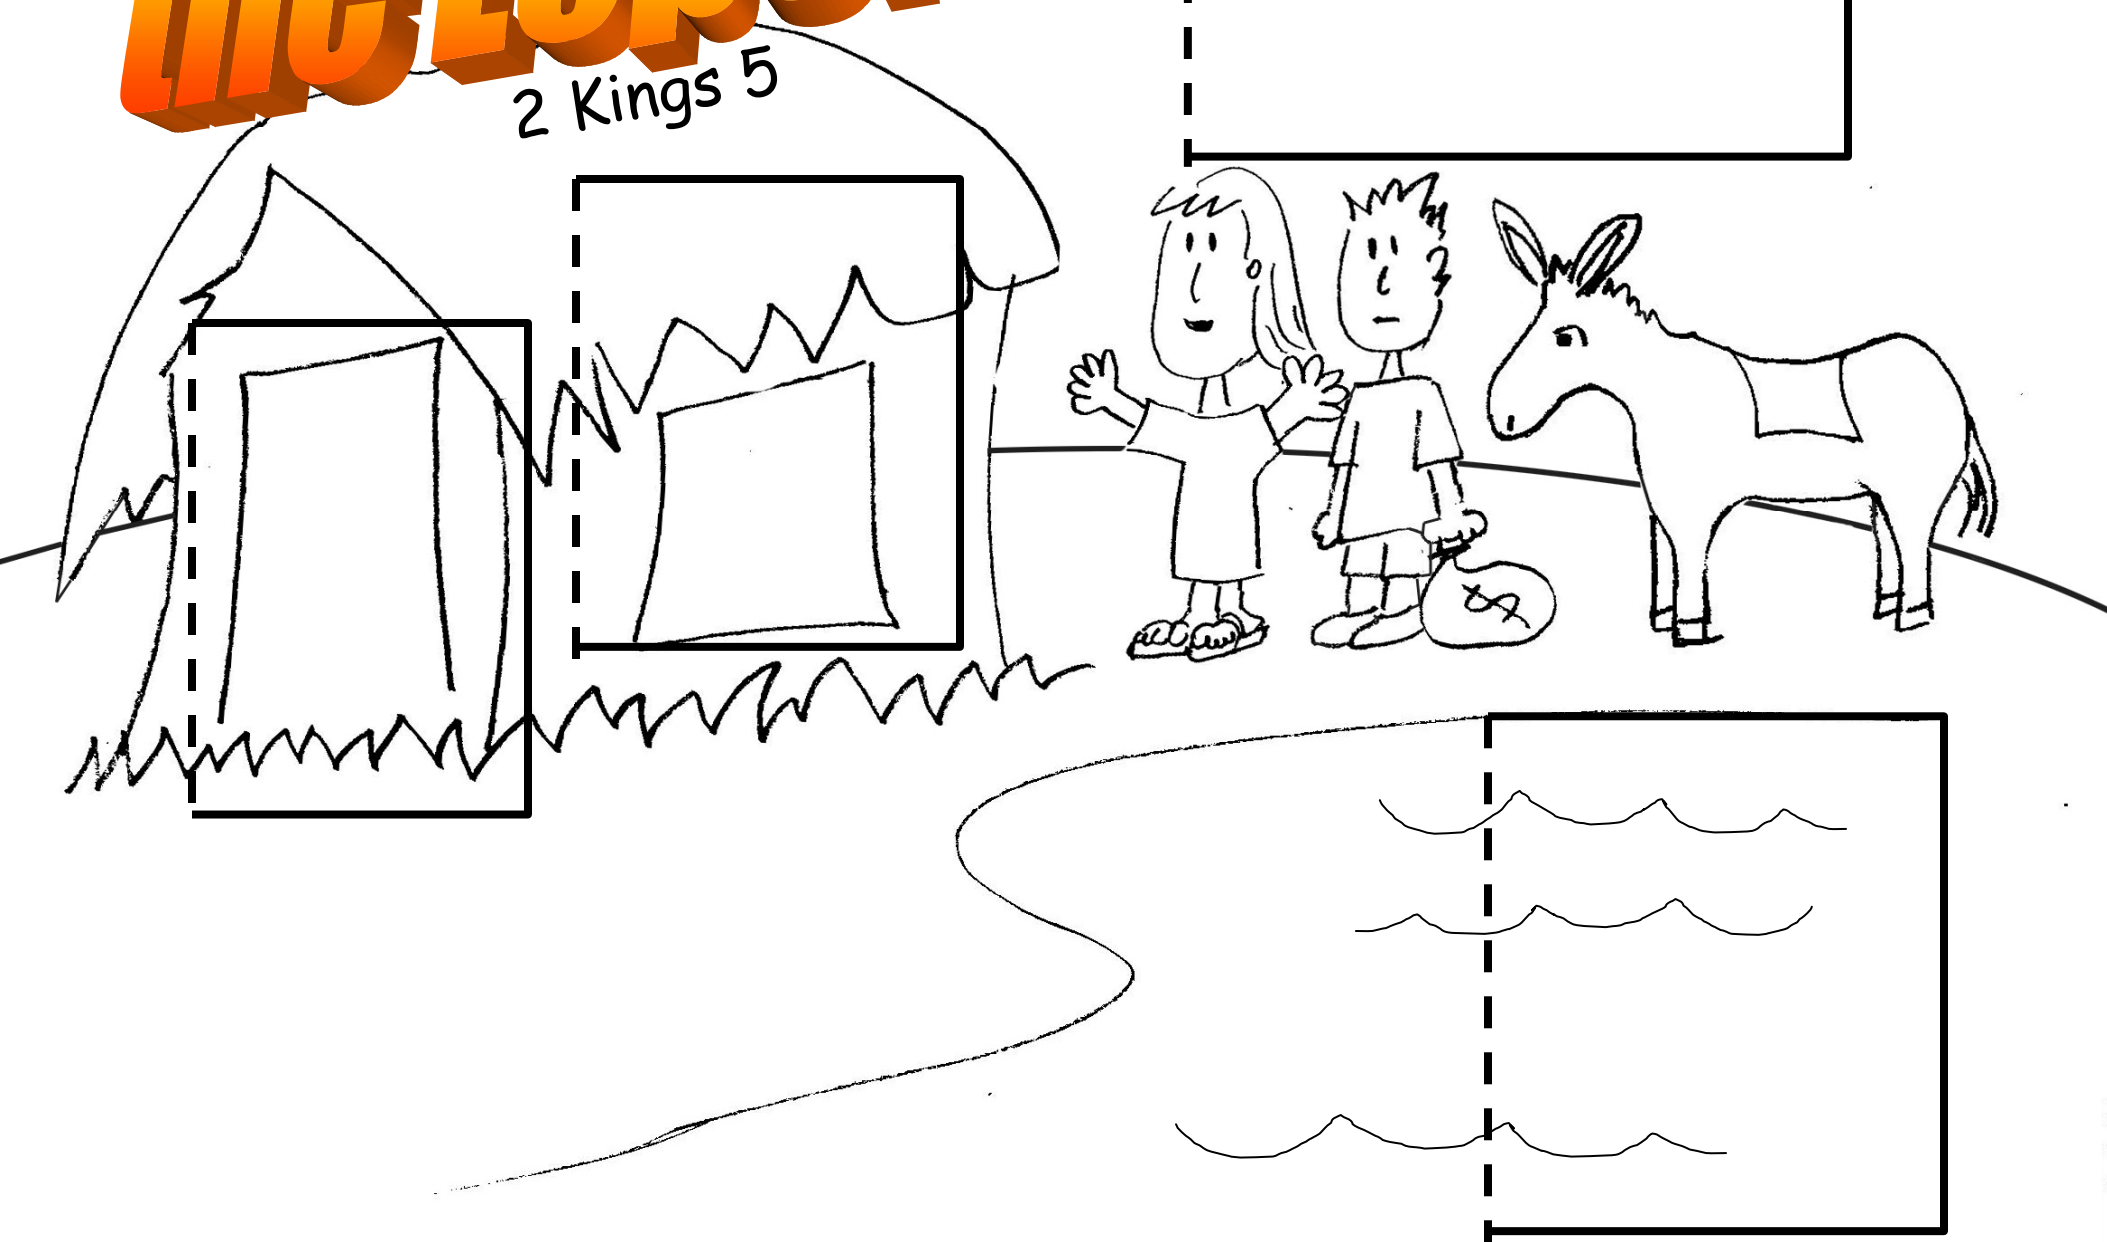

In 2 Kings 5, Naaman, the commander of the army of Syria discovered that he had the dreaded disease of leprosy. His slave girl from Israel told him to go see the prophet Elisha. Naaman went first to the king of Israel with a large gift. The king was unable to help and worried that Naaman was looking for an excuse to attack him. Elisha heard about the king's problem and called for Naaman. Elisha sent Naaman to the Jordan river to wash seven times. Naaman was angry and was about to go back to Syria when his servants persuaded him to obey Elisha's word. After obeying, his skin was healed. Naaman returned to Elisha's house and offered payment which he refused. Instead Elisha told Naaman to worship the LORD instead of the false gods of Syria. After Naaman started for home, Gehazi, Elisha's servant, followed Naaman and asked for payment without telling Elisha what he was doing. Gehazi hid the gift of silver and clothing and returned to his master Elisha. Elisha accused Gehazi of disobeying his word. "Therefore the leprosy of Naaman shall cling to you and your descendants forever." The servant left Elisha infected with Naaman's disease.
